With only a few carefully designed units, Majulê Ecolodge guarantees privacy and attentive service across every detail. Set within the vast wilderness of Chapada dos Veadeiros, a UNESCO biosphere reserve in Brazil, the peaceful haven offers an immersive retreat where comfort merges with the untamed beauty of the Cerrado. Surrounded by more than 120,000 square metres of preserved nature, the lodge invites travellers into a landscape shaped by ancient rock formations, ancient forests and a breathtaking network of waterfalls that define this remarkable region. An exclusive collection of six private ecolodges have each been thoughtfully positioned to ensure seclusion and uninterrupted views of the wilderness.

The judges were particularly impressed by the calming respite that encapsulates every visit to Majulê Ecolodge, ensuring guests find what they need to unwind and unplug. Days begin with breakfast served within the privacy of each lodge, allowing guests to delight in fresh flavours while gazing across untouched landscapes. Exploration spreads out beyond the lodge, where dozens of nearby waterfalls and natural attractions invite discovery, whether through memorable swims beneath cascading waters or guided walks along scenic trails. Wellness also finds a natural rhythm here, with yoga sessions, therapeutic treatments and restorative massages.

Majulê Ecolodge offers exclusive, private wilderness retreats featuring six eco-lodges, waterfall excursions and wellness treatments within a UNESCO reserve.
